Message:

The current restricting proposal is a naked power grab by the Republican Party, driven by the current national administration.

Gerrymandering is at best, an exercise that exerts undue influence on the election process. At its worst, gerrymandering results in whole swaths of the population becoming marginalized, when politicians (influenced by massive cash contributors) drive the process so that they choose the voters and not the other way around.

There is absolutely no need to run a redistricting exercise now, at five years post census.
