Message:

If you go through with mid-decade redistricting, you're not serving Texans—you're crowning yourselves.

There is no constitutional mandate, no new census, and no legal justification for redrawing congressional maps in 2025. Article III, Section 28 of the Texas Constitution makes it clear: redistricting follows the decennial census. Anything outside of that is political theater, not representative democracy.

You may not wear robes or rings, but the intent is clear: to rule, not to represent. To control, not to compete. This isn't about voters. It's about self-preservation. It's about entrenching power by any means necessary.

As Thomas Jefferson warned:

"An elective despotism was not the government we fought for."

Men and women have given their lives for the version of America where voters choose their leaders—not the other way around.

They died defending a republic, not to prop up cowards who rig the rules like wannabe lords in a monarchy no one asked for.

If the only way you can stay in power is by redrawing the maps to protect yourselves, then you've already lost the right to lead. This isn't strength. It's weakness dressed up in procedure.

Reject this sham. Honor the Constitution. Honor the people. And honor the generations who believed we were better than this.

Texas doesn't need kings—we need courage.
