I'm writing to oppose the mid-decade redistricting scheme before the Legislature. This is a naked power-grab. It was once well-understood that if my side abused its power while in power then the other side might do the same. That understanding seems to have been lost in an belief that the other side will never hold power again. This kind of arrogant behavior makes it all the more likely Democrats will soon dominate state offices.

There is no need to redistrict. There's certainly no public outcry for it - in fact, just the opposite. People want state lawmakers to address important issues like emergency preparedness.

End the redistricting effort and use the special session to focus on issues that are important to Texans.
