Message:

I think that it is transparently disingenuous that the Trump DOJ has declared 4 Texas congressional districts unconstitutional at the same time that the state of Texas is defending their constitutionality in court. To use this sleight of hand as justification for redrawing districts in hopes of protecting or expanding the GOP majority in the US House is beyond the pale. To all those Republicans in the state senate and the governor's mansion who have traded their integrity for fealty to Trump, I say "shame!!"

I don't think that you can really justify the abbreviated process that you've laid out for developing new district boundaries as one that is driven by fairness. From the limited hearings and comment period you are having, to the compressed time to actually develop and debate the maps, and to the remaining lack of time for robust review by the electorate that much is clear.

This is not a fair process. It is a power grab orchestrated by the White House, desperately trying to stay in control despite wildly unpopular so-called policies and actions.

I ask you today, if you are indeed seeking new, fairer maps, develop a timeline that will allow it and figure out how to make that happen. Otherwise, start planning for 2030.
