I just heard that Chairman King said the people did not show up to speak on Saturday 7/26 in Houston. I refer him to the full house and the number of signups, one of them being me. I did not speak because time ran out, the same reason the majority of people who signed up to speak were not able to speak. I am furious at being maligned for partisan purposes. The people were there; you just neglected to allocate the time to listen to all of them. As long as I'm taking the trouble to write this, I would like to know exactly what rule said that our form had to be marked neutral. That question was asked more than once and the answer was always it's the rule. I want to know what rule. Please give me a link to where I can find this rule on the web. At the moment this seems pretty fishy to me. It will seem more fishy if anybody claims all the forms of people who didn't get to speak, which was the majority of the people who signed up, indicate that they were neutral. Not one single person who got to speak was neutral. They were all against.
